Formal Notice Given of Withdrawal From League of Nations in Event Bolivia's Demands Are Accepted at Geneva—Declares League Incompetent

GENEVA, Sept. 7.—Tacit recognition of the Moscow soviet as the governing power in Russia was accorded by the League of Nations this afternoon. The secretary-general of the league gave notice that three treaties and one international agreement had been registered at league headquarters..

GENEVA, Sept. 7.—The Chilean delegation to the League of Nations assembly meeting this afternoon issued a statement denying the right of the league to interfere with the Chilean-Bolivian territorial dispute and claiming that such interference would be a violation of the Monroe doctrine.

(By International News Service)

GENEVA, Sept. 7.—Senor Edwards, head of the Chilean delegation to the League of Nations meeting, today served formal notice upon the league assembly that Chile will withdraw from the league if the demands of Bolivia are accepted.

The Chilean envoy said that his country held that the League of Nations assembly was not competent to revise the treaty of 1904 between Bolivia and Chile.*

Bolivia is Claimant

The dispute was referred to the League of Nations by Bolivia, and the Bolivian delegation demanded a revision of the treaty along with recognition of the Bolivian demands.

"If the assembly accepts the demands of Bolivia, then Chile can no longer participate in the activities of this assembly," said Senor Edwards.

"If the league considers revision of the Bolivian treaty, Germany may later demand revision of the treaty of Versailles. I ask that the assembly take an immediate vote upon the matter."

Bolivian Delegate Replies

Senor Aramayo, head of the Bolivian delegation, in replying to Senor Edwards, said there could be no hope of lasting peace in South America if the present Bolivian-Chile treaty stands. He moved that the Bolivian demands be sent to a committee for discussion before any vote was taken.

The Bolivian envoy was successful in obtaining delay. The assembly decided to postpone further discussion of the South American dispute until it could be studied at greater length with the understanding, however, that a definite decision be reached before the assembly adjourns. Both sides agreed to this.

Canada Wants Change

Canada is determined to press her fight for the elimination of Article 10 of the League of Nations covenant. This was revealed by Minister of Justice Doherty of the Canadian cabinet and head of the Canadian delegation.

"Canada is going to stand by her guns," said Mr. Doherty. "She will reinterate her demand that the league kill Article 10. If the assembly votes to retain it, the situation will become serious for us. Frankly, I do not know what the Canadian parliament will do."

This statement was made following the announcement that the special committee had rejected the amendment proposed by Canada last year, killing Article 10. The committee recommended that the article in question stand, but with modifications by the present session of the assembly.

*(Note.—The so-called Tacna-Arica dispute between Chile and Bolivia concerns territory. Bolivia has no outlet to the Pacific and claimed territory at the extreme northern end of Chile between the cities of Tacna and Arica. Under the treaty in question, Chile retained the disputed ground but allowed Bolivia free transport to the sea.)

Opens at Maximum Advance of $10 Per Bale Over Previous Day's Closing Price in New Orleans, Which Was Reflected Also in New York and Liverpool

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 7.—For the first time in the history of the local cotton market all months opened today $10 a bale above the close of yesterday. This is the limit of a raise in prices allowed in a day by the New Orleans Cotton Exchange, and brokers and others fought like wild men to buy as soon as the market opened.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Spot cotton rose from $6.25 to more than $8 a bale on the New York cotton exchange today. While there was considerable unloading by those who wished to take profits upon their speculative holdings, there were other eager buyers and their orders kept the market busy.

The cotton market cotinued its wild course upward at the opening today, and on the call values rose 130 to 190 points above the previous close. Dealings were so heavy and general that it was impossible to absorb any special feature, except that possibly the South was a heavier seller this morning and there was a tremendous amount of liquidation, which was absorbed by New York buyers.

The market at Liverpool also was a wild affair and exceedingly strong early, but turned suddenly weak, and at the time of the opening here had broken 95 points from the top, equal to 130 American points. The unloading movement here gained headway after the start and at the end of the first 15 minutes the list was off about 25 points from the top.

HIGH ENROLLMENT REACHES 223 ON OPENING DAY

The registration of students at Glendale High yesterday totalled 223, which is probably less than one-fifth of the total number who will enroll.

The new registrar's room with its long counter, at which three times as many applicants can find room as at the old one, proved itself a very great convenience. This morning, in addition to Miss Myrtle Pulliam and Miss Jane Snyder, office secretaries, Vice-Principals Mrs. George U. Moyse and A. L. Ferguson were busy with the registration work.

Newcomers will be interested to know that Glendale High provides 15 courses of study. Any one of ten courses will admit to college. These ten courses, which cover four years, are as follows: English, history, foreign language, mathematics, science, engineering, arts and crafts, home economics and music. In each of these courses is a solid ground work of subjects other than the one which dominates the course, but they have been prepared with special reference to college courses likely to supplement the high school work. The other five courses are industrial, mechanical and commercial.

YOUNG STEEPLEJACK

Janitor Green of the High School tried to make a record as a steeplejack this morning on the campus.

Last year some mischief maker cut the rope on the flagpole. A new one was to be hung this year and the problem was how to get it to the top of the pole.

Mr. Green's farthest distance up was about two-thirds the height of the 50-foot pole. It then became so wobbly that he decided to stick to his motto, "safety first." A crowd of interested school boys had gathered and when one volunteered to shin up to the top his offer was accepted. He made it and received $2 for his daring.

Business Manager Oliver says that had he known about it, no boy would have been permitted to take the risk.

CAR BOMBED IN TRAIN HOLD-UP

TEXAKANA, Tex., Sept. 7.—Engineer F. Woodson of Shreveport, was clubbed over the head with a gun butt, his scalp badly lacerated and the negro porter, E. Moss, was shot through both legs when four masked men last night held up and robbed Kansas City Southern passenger train No. 2 between Bloomburg, Tex., and Texarkana. Only the mail car was robbed, the bandits taking everything of value. Upon the refusal of the mail clerks to open the car, a small gas bomb was thrown through a transom, thus compelling the clerks to open the door to keep from suffocating.

FIRES THREATEN MINNESOTA TOWNS

McGRATH, Minn. Sep. 7.—Fires raging beyond control in Minnesota forests have wiped out half a dozen hamlets and wrought damage amounting to several million dollars, reports here today indicated. Seven hundred and fifty state guardsmen, aided by thousands of civilians, are waging war on the fires at three different points.

Booster Rally in Big Top Gives Momentum to Get-Together Movement of Commercial Organization, Which Will Strive for 1000 New Members

If the interest shown at the Chamber of Commerce mass meeting held in the big tent last night may serve as a criterion it is a foregone conclusion that the chamber will be successful in the work it has undertaken—the securing of 300 new members in one week.

At the outset it would seem that this is an insurmountable undertaking—that it is impossible of achievement— but it is not. Under ordinary conditions the securing of 300 new members would constitute a good year's work. That would be almost a member for every working day in the year.

But in this particular campaign there is something extremely vital that must be taken into consideration, and that is the spirit in which the workers are undertaking this work of securing new members.

Enthusiasm Shows

The spirit and enthusiasm that was manifest at the meeting last night are such as cannot be denied. With all of the workers going to bat at the same time, and in the same spirit, wonderful results are sure to follow.

Four committees, made up of workers who will work from the drop of the hat, have been assigned to rounding up these prospective and ought-to-be members of the C. of C. The purpose of these committees will be to canvass the entire city, going from house to house and giving every resident and property owner within the coroporate limits of Glendale a chance to join the Chamber of Commerce and thereby assist in the upbuilding of this city. No one will be overlooked. For the purpose of designating the territory to be covered by the different committees the city has been divided by Broadway, running east and west, and by Brand boulevard running north and south.

The Committees

The chairmen and members of the various committees are as follows:

Northwest Section—West of North Brand boulevard and north of West Broadway: Mrs. Ella Richardson, chairman; Miss Edith May Osborn, E. H. Botsford, Dr. A. A. McIntyre, J. A. Endicott, H. E. Bartlett, A. H. Lapham, J. R. Gray, Dr. H. V. Brown, Frank Wyman, E. L. Osborn and C. Ellsperman.

Northwest Section—East of North Brand boulevard, and north of East Broadway: Dr. Jessie A. Russell, chairman; Mrs. Nena Bledso, Mrs. Mable Tight, E. D. Yard, J. C. Bahme, S. L. Roland, C. E. Kimlin, Dr. C. P. Jackson, Dr. H. G. Westphal, Mrs. E. W. Hayward, Mrs. Jack Thomas, J. A. Ford, and W. S. May.

Southwest Section—South of East Broadway and east of South Brand: Mrs. Margaret I. Biggs, chairman; C. H. Henry, Harry St. Clair, Mrs. C. M. Turck, C. A. Pallock, E. V. Jellison, L. Russell, N. Maxwell Miller, Dr. Albert Vack, Rev. O. P. Rider, S. J. Mayes, and Maurice Healey.

Meet Tonight

With these committees of workers in the field there is sure to be something doing. A meeting of the committees will be held at the White Inn tonight. The purpose of this meeting will be to instruct the various workers as to their work and to start them on the way. A week from tonight another meeting will be held at the same place. At this time there will be a dinner to which all those who have secured a new member is entitled to go. The reports of the various committees will be given at that time and in Thursday's Evening Press the success of the campaign will be announced.

Rousing Meeting

The meeting held in the big tent last night was a rousing affair. The Glendale Elks-Legion band was on hand to put the lively touch to the session. Raymond D. Crawford, director, is an expert in the handling of a body of musicians of this kind and draws out their best efforts.

Following the musical program Assistant Secretary Sanders gathered all the new members at the rear of the tent and to the march, "Stars and Stripes Forever," this body of over a hundred marched up the aisle and onto the platform. Master of ceremonies, Attorney W. E. Evans was then introduced by C. C. Cooper, president of the Chamber of Commerce. In response to the introduction Mr. Evans said:

Mr. Evans Speaks

"I consider it no small honor to have the privilege of presiding over a meeting held by the livest Chamber of Commerce in the world. Some one has said this and as I haven't proof either way we will assume it is true until proof is furnished to the contrary. We certainly are proud of our Chamber of Commerce and our city. Every day reveals new reasons for us feeling this way. During my vacation this year I traveled as far north as Canada. I visited in many cities that were prosperous and progressive. In fact there were few that were otherwise. I naturally made comparison between them and Glendale, and I believe Glendale and its Chamber of Commerce is ahead of all the rest."

Assistant Secretary Sanders, then introduced, said in part:

Presents Jewels

"I have the honor to present to you, Mr. President, and to the Board of Directors of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce, these jewels (new members) of Glendale—the Jewel City of the San Fernando Valley. Every one of these people is a red blooded booster, loyal hearted and ready for your call at any time. They are ready to serve in any capacity in which they are capable. When I came to Glendale I didn't know the city nor the people, but I knew they must be good if they chose to reside in such a beautiful city as Glendale. Let me tell you that I found the gradest kind of people here. The board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce need the assistance of all of the members of the organization. We must all get back of them and lend them our undivided support."

Attorney Owen Emery, a member of the board of directors of the chamber, was then introduced.

"My duty is to welcome the new members into the Chamber of Commerce in behalf of the present board of directors and old members. I heartily welcome you into our organization. By joining you have signified your intention of making Glendale bigger and better than ever. Not more than eight months ago this body was reorganized into the Greater Chamber of Commerce. From 50 the membership grew to 150. Now it is more than 500 and it will soon be 1000, and the chances are that before we are through it will be 5000, a number which we ought to be able to attain. Because you came in as new members you set in motion a movement that will be far-reaching.

"All of you gentlemen and ladies believe in Glendale and in the Chamber of Commerce, otherwise you would never have signed the application and paid over your check. We welcome you to membership in our organiza-

HOME TOWN PAPER BETRAYS CONVICT

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 7.—David Bender, convict, said to have killed a policeman in Baltimore in 1915, was under arrest here today due to his desire for home news. Local officers were advised that it was the custom of Bender to purchase Baltimore papers frequently, so a watch was placed on a prominent news stand.

Observing a man purchase a Baltimore paper, Detective Frank McGrayan approached him and instantly was confronted with a revolver. Before the weapon could be fired, Detective Leo Bunner stepped from behind and knocked it from the man's hand.

A desperate battle followed, in which it required the combined strength of three detectives to subdue the prisoner, who was identified as Bender.

Bender today declared he had written the warden of the Maryland penitentiary offering to return if granted a new trial. However, he declared he would rather die than return to serve his 18-year sentence. He urged the arresting officers to kill him.

WOMAN DESCRIBES RUSSIAN FAMINE

MOSCOW, Sept. 7.—Bessie Beatty of San Francisco, noted femininist and an authority on Russia, has just returned from a 3000-mile round trip to the Samara famine area and today gave the International News Service her impressions. Miss Beatty, who was formerly a newspaper writer in San Francisco and Los Angeles, made the long journey in a special train as a fellow passenger of M. Valinin, president of the soviet government committee investigating the famine and plague.

"Samara is the heart of the famine area," she said. "Conditions are better the further south one goes. In Astrachan and Tsartizin vegetables, fruit and fish somewhat relieve the food shortage.

"There is no panic anywhere, though great crowds are thronging Samara, eager to get out of that district. A fatalistic depression pervades all the stricken area."

DAMAGED

MOON FESTIVAL OF TUJUNGA CLOSES AMID SPLENDOR

With a grand ball last night, the first Moon Festival of the Tujungans held for many years, came to a close. The Moon Garden is vanishing, the Temple of the Golden Moon has closed its doors, the many other entertainments have "folded their tents" and passed on, leaving the stately oaks, the everlasting green Verdugo hills and the Millionaires' Club of Happiness and Contentment to enjoy the peace that was theirs before the advent of the festival days.

Although it was a little strenuous for the neighbors to hold open house every day for five days, they feel amply repaid. A register which was signed by every visitor to the Millionaires' Club, contains over 500 names, all now life members of the club. Included in the list are people from all over the country, as well as from Southern California. Buron Fitts, past state commander of the California American Legion, who gave a splendid address on the ideals of the Legion to a large crowd on Sunday afternoon, is now a member, as well as ex-Congressman Randall, who signed his address as Tujunga and Pasadena, but said that he hoped soon to be able to leave off the Pasadena. A representative of one of the moving picture weekly screen magazines was present at one of the sessions and succeeded in having the millionaires pose for their pictures to show to the people of the roaring towns.

Of great interest during the closing days was the contest for queen of the festival, in which many of Tujunga's most popular young ladies were entered. Mary Begue was finally adjudged winner and was duly crowned queen. Others who closely crowded Miss Begue at all times were Mrs. Edith Eichenhofer, Miss Frances Morgan and Miss Marcelena Shaner. Prizes given were: First, diamond ring; second, beaded bag; third, pearl necklace; fourth, pearl bracelet.

It is yet too early to definitely announce the results of the festival in a financial way, but it is certain that if satisfied visitors who left with a wish to come again as often as possible can be counted as an asset, Tujunga is wealthy beyond all the dreams of avarice. Living up to every promise made in a way to make glad the hearts of people who expected to be "stung" on a proposition such as was put across, the committee in charge, backed up by every resident of the little metropolis, has shown that "it can be done."

Tujunga, our hats are off to you. You are a neighbor to be proud of.

Captain Calvin Nicholson made an enthusiastic report concerning the membership drive. He announced that the "Glendale First" stag party will be held Tuesday, September 20, and admission will be by invitation only. The program for this occasion will consist of music, speeches and miscellaneous entertainment features, and "the boys" will make it a gala night.

MORE THAN ACRE OF CUCUMBERS ARE UNDER GLASS

Wth the completion this month of the second unit of the Davis-Glendale Company's mammoth greenhouse plant, there will be one and one-fifth acres under steel and glass and all devoted to the raising of cucumbers. The first building, 72 by 350 feet, was completed last year, together with the necessary boiler-room and equipment, and one fine crop of cucumbers has been raised and marketed. The vines do not spread out over the ground as in ordinary gardens, but are trained upon trellises, and cucumbers from 12 to 20 inches in length are gathered for shipment.

The plumbng in one of these greenhouses is very costly, as pipes must be laid both for irrigation and steam heat. This second unit, now approaching completion, is 54 by 710 feet, and as soon as it is completed and the ground gotten into perfect shape, cucumber seed will be planted in the entire area.

In time, the entire 20 acres of Mr. Davis' holdings will be covered with greenhouses, and fine fruits, as well as a variety of vegetables, raised for the market. Mr. Davis remarked at one time:

"When I get everything going as I wish, I'll have luscious peaches ripening at Christmas time and other wonders in off-season culture."

James L. Henderson, manager for the company, though quite a young man, is an authority on greenhouse work and always gets results. Though soil conditions have been entirely different from those in Aurora, Ill., where he came from, he has already mastered them and is prepared to get the maximum of yield from it.

Mr. Davis has mammoth greenhouses, not only in Aurora, but in other Northern Illinois cities. The headquarters offices for all his establishments are in Aurora.

Manager Henderson lives in a very comfortable four-room bungalow on the grounds, built for him by Mr. Davis, and this makes a cosy and convenient home for him and his young wife and also for their little baby, born recently.

GENDALIANS AT PICNICS

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Franklin, Booth W. Franklin, Mrs. Mabel Franklin Ocker, Mr. and Mrs. Blake Franklin and Harry Franklin from this city attended the Macon (Illinois) picnic at Echo Park Monday forenoon and met there a number of old friends. In the afternoon they attended the Macomb (Illinois) picnic at the home of Mrs. Hamilton in Santa Monica, at which a number of distinguished men were guests, among whom were Charles C. Chapman, the orange king of Fullerton, and Ben B. Hampton of Los Angeles, the big movie producer. Both came from Macomb. Ralph Laughlin, the famous tenor was also there.

CATHOLIC CHURCH IS TO HAVE $10,000 ORGAN BUILT

Mr. Conradi has arrived from Boise, Idaho, to dress the stone that forms the entrance to the Holy Family Catholic Church. The stone was imported from Boise and Mr. Conradi will polish it and remove the stains of travel and handling.

A $10,000 organ is being built at Van Nuys for the church. It is a seven-manual instrument and will be soon installed.

The tenant in the house adjoining the church has vacated and the building is to be painted and put in repair for a parish house for Father O'Neill. He expects it will be ready for his occupancy by October 15, when it is expected that the dedication services in the church will take place.

AUTO CRAFTSMEN'S MEETING

The regular monthly meeting of the garage and repairmen's craft of the San Gabriel Valley Automobile Trade Association will be held at Jesse Smith's Ford garage, Glendale, on Thursday evening at 8 p. m.

These monthly meetings are highly beneficial, both to the garage owner and to the motoring public, as many new ideas develop—quicker ways of turning out repair jobs, etc.

Speaking of the coming meeting, P. W. Battelle, secretary-manager of the association, said:

"Today the car owner demands quick, accurate service when he drives his car into a garage to be overhauled or adjusted. Our association is founded for mutual benefit. The garage and repairmen attend meetings, get new ideas and find quicker and better ways of turning out jobs. More modern machinery is installed when practical and every one of our members guarantees his work. If a job isn't right, bring it back. Could anything be more fair than that?

"The association idea has been so successful that 18 states have now adopted it and even in Australia there exists an auto trade association."

For the convenience of the public, Mrs. Richardson will be at the Crofton Shoe Store, 105 North Brand, from 3 to 5 o'clock every evening between now and Saturday, to receive signatures.

It is hoped that the civic pride of Glendalians will place them foremost in the ranks of exhibitors.

Those wishing to telephone chairmen of departments may do so at the following heads: Child Welfare, Dr. Caroline P. Jackman, Glendale 655-J; Culinary, Mrs. A. H. Montgomery, Glendale 2126-W; Needlework, Miss Eva Daniels, Glendale 911-M; Art, Miss Alice Frank, Glendale 747; Plants and Flowers, Mrs. C. H. Houston, Glendale 457.

The club securing the greatest number of exhibits in proportion to membership will be awarded a loving cup or banner.

No matter how small they are, bring them to the board of directors. If you have any complaints, bring them in also. Don't nurse a grudge or a grouch. Tell us about them and let us settle them for you. We welcome you, ladies and gentlemen, but with that welcome there is a duty."

Bebe Daniels

At this stage of the program Miss Bebe Daniels, her mother, maid and accompanist entered the tent, and after a short talk complimentary to this very talented young actress, Miss Daniels favored the audience with a solo, beautifully sung, entitled, "Oh Manny, Papa's Getting Mad." Following this she immediately responded with an encore consisting of the choruses of "Jackie Horner," "Morning, Noon and Night," and "All by Myself." These numbers were enthusiastically received and by her work and charming manner Miss Daniels won her way into the hearts of her many hearers. C. E. Neale, of the Neale & Gregg Hardware Company, brought Miss Daniels and her party from Los Angeles in his large touring car.

Los Angeles Executive Speaks

The principal address of the evening was delivered by Sylvester L. Weaver, president of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce. He said in part:

"I am very much at home in a gathering of this kind. I know the work of the chamber of commerce and I am in perfect sympathy with it. It is the biggest organization in any town or city. We need new members and I congratulate you on making this wonderful showing tonight. I like the spirit that is being shown here.

"There must be no difference in opinion in the work of the chamber. We must all work hand-in-hand on all subjects. Glendale is a town of rapidly growing population and of beautiful homes and good schools, we of Los Angeles are proud of you and what you are doing. Don't think that we are antagonistic to you.

Offers Cooperation

"We are with you all the time in everything you may do, for why should we not be? Everything that benefits you also benefits us, and whatever movements we put into operation for our good also helps you. We must work hand in hand, as I said. Our chamber of commerce is not selfish. We have lectures every day in our rooms by the various counties in Southern California, and we are glad to promote the growth of counties other than our own. The chamber of commerce of any city represents all phases of the city's activities. It boosts for all sections, and favors none. Your body is an active one and we hope that you continue to grow and I am sure that you will. After the demonstration that we have seen here tonight there is no chance of her standing still."

HAWAIIANS FAVOR DISARMING
(By International News Service)

HONOLULU, Sept. 7.—At a mass meeting attended by more than 500 Japanese members of this community, a resolution was passed strongly favoring disarmament. The text of the resolution follows:

"In view of the deplorable consequences of the World War and for the sake of permanent peace among the nations, and the future welfare of humanity, we declare our hearty endorsement of the principle of disarmament and earnestly desire that it be realized by international cooperation."

HEAVY LOADS ARE BAD FOR HIGHWAY

A Glendale citizen who keeps two large trucks running constantly, hauling sand, gravel and stone from the vicinity of Roscoe for Glendale builders, informed a Daily Press reporter recently that he had the curiosity one day to have a loaded truck weighed, and the result was 25,070 pounds. The truck, when empty, weighed 8,880 pounds. Such loads as these, nearly 13 tons, rolling over the roads day after day, are bound to tear them to pieces in short order. City streets that are intended to be smooth driveways ought to be declared boulevards and warnings posted on them against the passage of loads above a certain prescribed weight, as in no other way can extra heavy loads be kept off them.

TO BEGIN WORK ON NEW CHRISTIAN CHURCH EDIFICE

Christian Church building plans were held up for a few days by an unexpected increase in the estimated expense, owing to some vital necessities that had been overlooked and the building committee was unwilling to proceed without the sanction of the official board. So a meeting of the latter body was held last night and those present unanimously voted to allow the additional amount. The building committee was authorized to proceed with the work, so Contractor W. G. Boyd was notified early this morning to get busy on the job.

The first work will be the moving of the two bungalow class rooms over on the lot farthest east. Then the main building will be placed on beams and lifted up, then turned one-quarter way around and left up in the air until the foundation and basement walls have been reared, when it will be let down on them and excavation for the new building commenced.

There will be a concrete basement under the entire new building, but under the old one only sufficient basement room for the furnace equipment, kitchen and serving room. It is expected by the contractor that the old building and the bungalows can be used for church and Sunday school services while the work is going on with the exception of one Sunday.

MRS. EVERETT ENTERTAINS

Dr. Jessie A. Russell, 643 North Maryland, was the guest at a tea given by Mrs. S. K. Everett and Countess Nadia Criscuolo, yesterday, at the home of Mrs. Everett, 698 Wilshire Place, Los Angeles. Over 100 guests were present. Dr. Russell also recently attended a musical reception, given by Dr. Bruce Gordon Kingsly and Baroness Ryline Morrell in honor of Madame Genevra Johnston Bishop, at which over 300 guests were present.

FEW FOLKS HAVE GRAY HAIR NOW

Druggist Says Ladies Are Using Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmothers made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep their locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

SOUTH GLENDALE TO CONSOLIDATE TWO ORGANIZATIONS

Improvement Association and Gateway Group To Hold Joint Meeting Tonight

A meeting of committees appointed by the new improvement association in South Glendale and also the Gateway Improvement association will take place in the Glendale library branch, at Brand and Los Feliz, tonight. The purpose of this meeting will be to consider ways and means of consolidating the two organizations.

The result of this meeting will be reported to a meeting of the new improvement association, which will be held in the library, tomorrow night. George E. Schram, who is temporary president of the new improvement association believes that there will be little trouble in effecting the consolidation of the two organizations and that when this has been effected, things will soon be humming along.

"The aim of this organization," said Mr. Schram, this afternoon, "is the betterment of the section as a whole. We want a better ornamental lighting system on the San Fernando road and the Los Feliz road, the widening of the Los Feliz road, better fire-fighting facilities at the Cerritos avenue school, etc. With the present water facilities that exist at this time at this school, it is a foregone conclusion that the building would burn to the ground, were it ever to catch fire. There are lots of things we need, and are going after just as soon as these organizations are united. Just watch our smoke."

BLACK'S DRUG STORE TO BE IMPROVED

George V. Black, who maintains a drup store at the corner of Los Feliz and San Fernando roads, contemplates extensive improvements to his storeroom. The fountain will be moved to the opposite side of the room and the display window on the Los Feliz road side will be extended back 10 feet, giving a beautiful view of his goods.

NEW MILLINERS ON SAN FERNANDO ROAD

Misses Richardson and Baldwin, who opened a millinery and notion store recently in a store room on the San Fernando road, report that business is proving to be far better than they expected. The people of Tropico seem to appreciate an establishment of this kind, they say, and they expect that things will become even better as the weeks wear away.

Cultured Slovakian People.

The inn at Turciansky Sv. Martin in northern central Slovakia is a real social center. Here the inhabitants of this cultural center of Slovakia assemble for song and gossip. In spite of the antiquity of their get-up, the peasants of the region are among the most cultured people in Europe; their little town is a center of the printing industry and boasts a most interesting museum. The women of Slovakia, although the difficulty in obtaining linens and colored thread with which to make their embroideries is now great, still work with the same care and reverence for traditional craftsmanship as formerly. Indeed the peasant woman of Detva, Slovakia, both in the work upon which she is engaged and the beautiful clothes she wears, would seem to be a living model for her sisters in the neighboring villages. It is in their gardens that these women work, surrounded by their children.

The Osci, Early Occupants of Italy.

The Osci, or Oscans, were an Italian people who appear to have been the original occupants, at the earliest known period, of Central Italy from Campania and the borders of Latium to the Adriatic. The Oscans were subdued by the Sabines, a people from the Apennines on the north, of whose previous history little in known, and who probably adopted the language and customs of the conquered, with what modifications cannot be ascertained. The Oscan language was closely allied to the Latin, of which it was probably a parent stock. It appears to have been spoken in the provinces long after Latin became the official language, and it was used officially long after the Roman conquest.

SAYS WAR HELPED RELIGION

Big Fight Made Soldiers Better Men, Is Assertion Made by Man Who Knows Them.

The American soldier came out of the war with more religion than he went in, according to Rev. Henry Russell Talbot, canon of the National cathedral at Washington, who arises to defend the doughboy from the libel that the "war ruined him."

"He is a better man for having been in the army," asserts the canon, referring to the veteran, the Stars and Stripes states.

Canon Talbot was senior chaplain of the First division of the American expeditionary forces. In a communication to national headquarters of the American Legion at Indianapolis he admits the American, as he saw him in France, was "uncommonly timid in the exercise of his religion. He was frightened at his own religious shadow or he might have been grossly ignorant of the content and practice of his religion."

But as the First division's senior chaplain, the canon was in charge of all the private belongings of the 1,800 Americans killed in the ten days' fighting in the Argonne, and in nine out of every ten of the men's kits found a crucifix, scapular, prayerbook or testament. "And in those days," Canon Talbot writes, "the First division was not carrying anything it did not deem essential.'

"There was a kind of collectivism which outruns the ordinary standards of honesty," declares the canon, "but underneath there was implicit, if not explicit, reverence for the Son of Man."

Birds "Discovered" Baldwin Apples.

The famous Baldwin apple was discovered by Col. Loammi Baldwin, a distinguished resident of Woburn, Mass., during the latter half of the Eighteenth century. While surveying land in Wilmington, Mass., Colonel Baldwin observed a tree on the land of James Butters, which appeared to be much frequented by woodpeckers. Curiosity led him to examine the tree, and he found that it bore apples of an excellent flavor.

The next spring he took cuttings from the tree to graft into trees of his own, and the experiment was so successful that it was not long before the apple was extensively cultivated in many sections of the state.

NATIVE SONS ARE 75.4 PER CENT CAUCASIAN

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 7.—The population of the state of California as recently announced by the Bureau of the Census, Department of Commerce, is 75.4 per cent native white, 19.9 per cent foreign-born white, 2.1 per cent Japanese, 0.8 per cent Chinese, 0.5 per cent Indian, and 1.1 per cent Negro.

The foreign-born white population, which was 517,250 in 1910, increased to 681,662 in 1920, an increase of 31.8 per cent. The native white population in the same period increased from 1,742,422 to 2,583,049, or 48.2 per cent.

Above one-half (5.4 per cent) of the white population of the state consists of native Americans, born of American parents, the total native whites of native parentage being 1,677,955, while the foreign element is represented by 681,662 foreign-born whites, 573,927 native whites who had foreign-born parents, and 331,167 who had one parent foreign-born, the other being native.

The total population includes also 2,874 Filipinos, 1,723 Hindus, 772 Koreans, 70 Hawaiians, 12 Malays, 6 Siamese, and 1 Maori.

In almost every county of the state the percentage of foreign-born whites has decreased and in 26 of the 58 counties there was also a decrease in number of native-born whites.

REALLY GOOD SHORT SERMON

World Would Be Better If More of Us Had the Ideas of That Little Newsboy.

A bright-eyed, barefooted, shabby little fellow was working his way through a crowded car, offering his papers in every direction, in a way that showed him well used to the business and of a temperament not easily daunted.

The train started while he was making change and the conductor, passing him, laughed.

"Caught this time, Joe!" he said. "You'll have to run to Fourteenth St."

"Don't care," laughed Joe in return. "I can sell all the way back again."

A white-haired old gentleman seemed interested in the boy and questioned him concerning his way of living and his earnings. There was a younger brother to be supported, it appeared. "Jimmy" was lame and "could not earn much himself."

"Ah, I see. That makes it hard; you could do better alone."

The shabby little figure was erect in a moment and the denial was prompt and somewhat indignant.

"No, I couldn't! Jim's somebody to go home to; he's lots of help. What would be the good of havin' luck if nobody was glad? Or of gettin' things if there was nobody to divide with?"

"Fourteenth street!" called the conductor, and as the newsboy jumped out into the gathering dusk the old gentleman remarked to nobody in particular: "I've heard many a poorer sermon than that."—Forward Magazine.

SOHO MAY BE SWEPT AWAY

Picturesque Part of London Scheduled to Yield to the Demand of Commerce.

Two picturesque slices of old London, known to tens of thousands of Americans, may soon be scooped away to satisfy the demands of commerce. Soho and the parish of St. Giles—or Seven Dials, as it is better known—are about to begin their passage into history and be converted into the most modern business district of the metropolis, possibly a second city of London.

Sobo, which probably derived its name from the duke of Monmouth's famous battle-cry "Soho" at Sedgmoor, has experienced many vicissitudes of fortune. In the olden days regarded as one of the fashionable quarters of London, it gradually became the home of bohemianism and the haunt of Sam Pepys and Goldsmith.

Today its dingy and uninviting streets are lined with French, Italian and Swiss restaurants, where Londoners and visitors may learn what the much-praised foreign cooking really is.

The whole district is now almost entirely inhabited by foreigners and is the favorite meeting place of the anarchists of the "tame" variety. For long it was looked upon as the equivalent of the Montmartre, but never at any time has it attained the attractiveness or liveliness of the gay Parisian quarter.

"Spirit Message" by Radio.

A true story, well known in scientific circles, records the first use of radio-telephone during the war in France. Professor W—— of Yale university, then in the reserve corps, was asked to witness a voice-controlled flight near Romarankin France. Standing in a hangar on the ground, he placed the receiving instrument to his ear. The voice of an unseen person from the clouds spoke a message. The professor turned pale as he dropped the receiver.

"My God," he exclaimed, "that's Prof. Peters! He died nine years ago!"

The professor was told that the man speaking was one of the pilots of the 69th squadron.

Soon the pilot came to earth and walked into the hangar. He proved to be Prof. Peters' son.—Horace Green in Leslie's.

GET BUSY

Many good judges believe that the next boom period will start as soon as the farmer can put his hand on crop profits. As the supply of wheat is estimated to be 40,000,000 bushels less than a year ago, with coming high prices looming up as a practical certainty, the farmer may have his inning yet, which means that the entire country will pick up in response to his returning prosperity.

According to the United States bureau of labor statistics farm products have declined, since the beginning of 1920, about 245 to 114 on the average from the index, compared with a decline in house furnishing goods of 372 to 250. In this index, compiled by the bureau, 100 is taken as equivalent to 1913 average price levels.

Taking these declining percentages in conjunction with the known shortage of farm products in general, it is difficult to see what stands in the way of higher crop earnings for the "man of the soil," on whom the return to normalcy depends more than anyone else.

Traders in securities will do well in remembering this basic condition and make their purchases accordingly while the list of good, substantial securities is still on the bargain counter. Once the farmer's pocket is jingling with fresh cash profits it is too late to go shopping for bargains in the stock market, which will discount the farmer's jingling pocket by several months. It always has and it always will.

TAX ADVICE

If a tax were levied on all the advice this country is receiving on how to promote prosperity there would be need of no other kind of taxation. One of the most amusing of incompetent counsel is the oft-quoted call for production and yet more production. "Go to work!" is fine medicine to the army of 6,000,000 jobless workers who want work but cannot find it!

As a rule, advice of this stripe emanates from people with no practical insight, people who have never experienced the sensation of wondering anxiously about their rent money. They sit behind glass-top desks and philosophize about working conditions without knowing them first hand.

You just try to find a man who can give you a clear, straight statement of reasons back of the great economic upheavals known as Prosperity and Depression. Such periods have followed one another in unending succession ever since the beginning of business operation, and have become known as "cycles." What we believe of great importance, however, is the knowledge that stocks of the better grade have been invariably big bargains when business was very poor (the poorer the business the better the bargains, as a rule), and that during boom times, when prosperity was at its height, that the shares in our industrial companies were also, on the average, near their high peaks.

FAILURE?

There is no such thing as failure except in your own mind. If you train yourself to ignore your failures as mere incidents leading inevitably to success, you will cease to worry about failure, which is your first success.

All men of mark and position have a string of failures trailing after them in the shadow of oblivion—the proper place for them.

The reason such men succeeded eventually is that they kept on ignoring their failures as fast as they made them.

Show me a man who is repeatedly losing money in trading in stocks and I will show you a man who is repeatedly worrying about failure. He hasn't learned to put failure past him. Experience hasn't taught him anything. He follows every opinion except his own because he has not learned to form an opinion of his own worth sticking to.

Study the market as you study pinochle and golf. Keep informed from day to day. Base your dealings on accurate information. Use your own head, and success is yours in the stock market, as it is in any other business.

STOVE FIRST MADE IN 1855

But Dr. Neil Arnott, an Englishman, Had the Germ of the Idea in the Year 1821.

Stoves are a comparatively recent invention. True, stoves of some sort were used by the ancients and even by the savage tribes which preceded their civilization, but the first real modern "improvement in the production and agency of heat," as he called it, was made by Dr. Neil Arnott and announced to a marveling England Nov. 4, 1821, the Detroit News states.

How much stoves were in need of modernization in those days in proven by the fact that when the German, Dr. C. William Siemes, in 1850, described his first "smokeless" stoves, not only the scientific world but all properly conducted households greeted him as a great inventor.

The next steps forward were made by T. Pridgin Teale in 1855 and from that day dates the stove as we know it now.

But prior to Teale's inventions the world was made acquainted by the American, Hamilton, in 1874, with a system of compressed grass, straw and other materials in such a manner that they could be burnt without producing masses of suffocating smoke. Hamilton's invention was dedicated to localities where wood was scarce. It never had much vogue, but presumably was deeply appreciated by the people whom he had in mind in devising his patent.

CAKE SUFFICIENT FOR ARMY

Monster Confection That William I of Prussia Set Before Thirty Thousand Fighting Men.

When William I of Prussia gave his army a regale in 1730 he let them feast on vegetables and roast beef, and then wash it down with lots of beer and ale, according to William S. Walsh, who has a taste for compiling curious information. When the thirty thousand guests had almost finished their meal they saw their dessert coming on a dray drawn by eight horses. The dray bore a gigantic cake—said to have been the largest cake ever baked. It was twenty-four feet square and a foot and a half thick.

Mixed in the cake were products which would have fed a small village. More than thirty-six bushels of flour were mixed in it; 200 gallons of milk had been used; one ton of butter had made it rich, and one ton of yeast had made it rise; 5,000 eggs had been patiently broken and beaten into the batter. The result, baked under extreme difficulties, was the big cake, containing over 850 cubic feet of the goody.

But the thirty thousand guests had filled themselves on roast beef and vegetables and it was impossible for them to eat all the cake, although it would have been possible for them to do so had they all been hungry. Obviously, so much cake could not be allowed to go to waste. So the remainder of it was cut up and distributed in nearby villages to the various needy families, who made short work of it.

Race Is Deteriorating Says Dr. S. J. Holmes

By ELLIS H. MARTIN,
International News Service Staff Correspondent

BERKELEY, Cal., Sept. 7.—A gradual deterioration is taking place in the human race.

This deterioration is due to:

Bottle-fed babies.

"Indolence" of the better class of women in rearing children.

Employment of large numbers of women in office work.

Crossing of the races.

Inherited effects of alcohol.

Modern environmental agencies of industry and city life.

These are the conclusions reasoned by Dr. Samuel J. Holmes, professor of zoology at the University of California in his latest book, "The Trend of the Race." In this volume Dr. Holmes traces the evolution of the American people and mankind and presents the results of intensive study and investigation of the race.

Children Are Borne With More Difficulty

Factors noted in tracing the deterioration include increasing difficulty experienced in bearing children; frequent inability of women to nurse their children; the growing frequency of suicide; decrease in stature; increasing dental irregularities and tendency to baldness; loss of use of ear muscles and degeneration of the little toe.

"It is a fairly general opinion, which has a considerable following in medical circles, that the physique of modern civilized women has become rather seriously weakened in the last few generations," says Dr. Holmes. "Our index of this is the increasing difficulty experienced in bearing children. The case with women of primitive races bear children has often been remarked upon. It is not improbable that this matter has been unduly exaggerated. Child bearing is easier, however, among women who are used to a moderate amount of physical labor.

"Undoubtedly the life of modern women, especially those of the more well-to-do classes, is not favorable to easy child-bearing. The employment of large numbers of women in sedentary occupations, such as stenography, office work, etc., cannot fail to multiply the troubles of childbirth.

"Another much-discussed physical defect of modern woman is her frequent inability to nurse children. Those who have lived among primitive peoples have frequently commented on the almost universal ability of mothers to feed their children at the breast. And among Europeans the women of previous generations nursed their children much more frequently than the woman of the present time.

Many Disinclined to Nurse Children

"Many women are disinclined, also, to nurse their children for at least a very long time in these days of artificial substitutes for mother's milk. The fact that the proportion of women unable to nurse their children is usually greater in cities than in rural districts, points to the potency of environmental influences for this change in natural conditions."

The inherited effects of alcohol Dr. Holmes gives as one of the probable reasons for the alleged degeneracy of modern women. Increase in crime, including murders and suicides, he declares, is also held to follow in the wake of inherited degeneracies.

In this regard he says:

"The growing frequency of suicide is often regarded as connected with the alleged increase of insanity and nervous disorders and hence as symptoms of racial deterioration. It is also explained as the results of changing environment, which is commonly held to be productive of more nervous strain than previous years."

Modern Civilization Effects Are Shown

Other effects of modern civilization on the human race Dr. Holmes points out as follows:

"Many physical characteristics of men are affected considerably by environmental agencies. The latter are especially prone to influence strength, longevity, rate of growth, the prevalence of various diseases, and to a less exten stature and weight. Conditions of life, especially in large industrial centers, have changed in such a way as greatly in affect the physique of a large part of the inhabitants. The relatively low stature of city dwellers is probably due largely to this cause.

"It is not improbable that many dental irregularities and maladjustments are the result of racial crossing. With more or less independent variability of jaws and teeth it often happens that teeth are unduly crowded in small jaws or are otherwise out of normal relations.

"Along with the deterioration of teeth there seems to be a correlative tendency to the loss of hair. Baldness is much more common to us than among primitive races. Although this is commonly ascribed to the wearing of hats, recent studies have shown that this infirmity depends largely on ancestry and the influence of hats is largely exaggerated.

"We have all but lost the use of some of our ear muscles and entirely lost the use of others, but we are no worse off in our present mode of life. Our little toe is said to be degenerating, and there are probably several minor structures in the same situation. A further degeneration of the vermiform appendix would probably be a positive advantage."

Nature Is Found To Be Correcting Herself

Despite the dark picture he has painted of the course of the American race, Dr. Holmes is not entirely pessismistic. In the course of his investigations he has found several factors which tend to indicate that nature is herself correcting the deficiences which modern civilization has conferred on the race.

"The one ageney which appears to be the most clearly working toward racial improvement is natural selection of mates," he says. "At any rate there is a large amount of evidence that is favoring the maintenance of phisical vigor and keenness of mind. Sexual selection is still in a more doubtful position.

"To a certain extent it retains what might be considered its primitive function of denying the privilege of parenthood to the poorer or uglier individuals of the species, but the more capable and independent spirits, especially among women, are coming to be denied this privilege also."

Intelligent recognition of the racial maladies which affect the present day and generation forms the only method for correction, says the college writer and lecturer.

"It is only by recognizing these and understanding the methods of their working that effective means can be taken to keep them in check," he says.

Feeble Attempt Made To Curtail Defectives

"Rather feeble attempts have been made to curtail the propagation of mental defectives through sterilizing or segregating some of the worst of these undesirable elements. The practice carried on much more extensively would undoubtedly relieve society of an immense burden. But the elimination of our worst defectives would not meet the most serious difficulty, which consists in the loss of stocks which carry our best inheritance.

"It is doubtful if the pecuniary rewards which have sometimes been advocated for increasing the birth rate of desirable parents would prove very effective. There is much to be said in making parenthood voluntary in all classes so as to restrict the birth rate among the people of better endowments. This of itself would lead to a greater relative fecundity among those of superior intelligence and so long as restriction is not carried far enough to prevent all increase of population, the result would doubtless be socially and eugenically desirable.

"For most civilized countries, therefore, the necessity for further restriction of the birth rate must sooner or later become imperative. If this should occur mainly in people of better endowments who already have a low birth rate, the deterioration of our racial inheritance will go on at an accelerated pace.

Nation's Best Blood Is Most Priceless

"An ignorant and poverty-stricken proletariat will multiply rapidly through sheer lack of restraint. The best blood of a nation is its most priceless possession.

"It is a hopeful sign that here and there among people who have inherited a generous measure of desirous traits eugenic considerations have led to the rearing of larger families. On the other hand, many who are aware that they carry a hereditary taint, refrain from passing a possible affliction to posterity.

"Those who have been most fortunate in the possession of hereditary gifts, should feel that upon them rests an unusual obligation to see that their qualities are not allowed to perish from the earth. The race has its fate in its own hands to make or to mar. Will it ever take itself in hand and shape its own destiny?"

Dr. Holmes has been associated with the University of California faculty for a number of years and is a recognized authority on evolution and economics. Besides his book, just off the press, he is the author of "The Evolution of Animal Intelligence," "Studies in Animal Behavior," and other volumes affecting the progress of the human race.

LOS ANGELES BRANCH U. OF C. IS STRONGER

BERKELEY, Sept. 2.—Instruction at the Southern Branch of the University of California at Los Angeles is to commence September 13, with an increased faculty and augmented curricula, according to a statement issued today by David P. Barrows, president of the University.

A new department of geology and minerology has been established under Frederick P. Vickerey; and the departments of chemistry, commerce, education, English, and physics have been materially strengthened by additions to the teaching staff.

Isabel Bevier, recently professor of home economices and director of the department of the University of Illinois, comes this year to the Southern Branch as head of the home economics department. During the war, Miss Bevier was chairman of the department of conservation, council of research, Illinois division; and a member of the advisory committee of the home economics division of the United States food administration. She has had a wide teaching experience, and is the author of several well-known works on home economics.

H. R. Brush, Ph.D., becomes head of the romance languages department. Dr. Brush has served in a similar capacity at the University of North Dakota.

H. R. Kraft, at present a member of the faculty of Teachers' College, Columbia University, becomes head of the music department at the Southern Branch. Mr. Kraft was four years a member of the New York Board of Education, and was general musical diector of the Methodist centenary celebration at Columbus, O., in 1919. He is a well-known composer of organ, piano, and vocal music, including the music for "The Wayfarer."

Among the other appointments to the faculty of the Sothern Branch are the following:

Associate Professor: Ethel L. Salisbury, M. A., Education.

Assistant Professors: Sigurd Hustvet, Ph.D., English; L. T. Lowery, Ph.D., History; J. E. Creed, Major U. S. A., Military Science and Tactics; L. E. Dodd, Ph.D., Physics.

Instructors: G. R. Robertson, Ph. D., Chemistry; H. W. Stone, Ph.D., Chemistry; Raymond Jenkins, Ph.D., English; Harriet MacKenzie, M. A., English.

Lecturers: J. R. Douglas, Ph.D., Administration; Maria de Lopez Lowther, Spanish.

More Men Attend

The percentage of men in the entire body of new undergraduates at the University of California has risen from 50 to 53 percent, according to figures made public today by Dr. David P. Barrows, president of the university. In 1915 the percentage of men was 51.5; in 1916, 50.15; and in 1917, 44.7.

The total number of new undergraduates registered, 2593, represents a decrease of 12.6 per cent as compared with last year. However, the total number of graduate and undergraduate students now registered at Berkeley is 9474, as compared with 9455 for the same period a year ago.

Twenty-three percent of the new undergraduates entered with advanced standing, a slight increase over last year, and a part of the gradual movement which has resulted from the establishment of the Southern Branch of the University of California at Los Angeles and other junior colleges throughout the state. In 1909 only 12 percent of the entering students claimed advanced standing.

No marked change in the number of non-resident students has been noted. "On the basis of present returns," said James Sutton, recorder of the faculties, "there is apparently little or no ground for believing that the increased tuition fees for non-resident students has appreciably affected the number of new students drawn to the university from other states and countries.

Business Men Taught Poultry

Business men as well as farmers are taught to raise poultry in an efficient manner in the six weeks' training courses given at the University of California Farm School at Davis. "The practical efficiency of the intensive six weeks poultry short course given at the farm school is being demonstrated year after year," states Professor J. E. Dougherty in discussing the short course which will open September 26.

Graduates of the University of California have taken an active part in the formation of poultry departments in the county farm bureaus, and many farmers who have taken the short courses have met with great success. One graduate recently made a record of an average egg production of 176.6 eggs per hen for the year.

The success of poultry raising depends on training, experience and skill of the poultryman. The short course offered by the Farm School offers effective training as it is given on a commercially operated farm of over 2000 laying hens. The announcement and complete schedule of the next short course beginning September 26 may be obtained from the university farm at Davis.

Ape, Fresh from Jungle Land, Is An Apt Pupil for Movies When Properly Tamed

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Mrs. Osa Johnson, who is pictured holding up the ape, is the plucky wife of the famous jungle explorer, Martin Johnson. Mrs. Johnson subdued a wild orang-outang, which had been captured during the taking of a film known as "Jungle Adventures." She did it by kindness and fearlessness displayed toward the animal.

An ape, it is seen, soon learns how to act in the films like many a more human screen idol. This ape is known as Romeo.

DIAMOND MINES ARE CLOSED TO KEEP PRICES HIGH

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—The world has been put on diamond rations to regulate the price of diamonds. This announcement comes from South Africa.

South African mine owners recently decided on restricted output of gems. Of the limited amount turned out the De Beers mines will supply 51 per cent, the Premier Mine, 18 per cent, and the mines of the Southwest Protectorate 21 per cent. Some of the famous mines have been closed down. Others are operating on only part time.

Announcement of this restricted output was followed by another from the London Diamond Syndicate, the selling organization of the De Beers Mines, Ltd., which is the diamond trust, that present diamond prices will be maintained. This ultimatum applies to rough diamonds. But as the South African mines supply 98 per cent of all the world's diamonds, the price of rough will be reflected in the price of polished gems.

The stand of the South African mine owners and the London Syndicate to prevent any cheapening of diamonds by reducing prices has been backed up by the allied diamond crafts of Amsterdam, the great market for polished gems. These tradesmen and brokers have offered financial help to small dealers to prevent forced sales and declares they will do everything in their power to keep diamond prices at present levels.

U. S. WOMAN BAGS BIG GAME IN EAST AFRICA

By C. A. SMITH,
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Sept. 7. — After a six months' big game shooting and exploration expedition in the Tanganyiki territory, formerly German East Africa, Mrs. Frederick Dalziel, a young American woman, is in London on her way to a quiet home life with her husband and two daughters in New York.

During her experition, which she made in company with Sir Charles Ross and Mr. Barnes, the African explorer, and his wife, Mrs. Dalziel included in her "bag," among a large quantity of smaller game, an elephant, a buffalo, two rhinoceroses, three hippopotamuses and seven lions.

Has Narrow Escape

"I went for my health, really," she said to an interviewer, "for I was compelled to lead an open-air life."

Mrs. Dalziel described how she missed death by inches in an encounter with a wounded rhinoceros.

"One day," she said, "we were walking down one of the jungle tracks, almost like subway tunnels, which run from water hole to water hole, when we came on a big animal asleep. Sir Charles went on ahead and fired at and wounded it, and it went crashing away into the jungle. I was some little way behind, and suddenly I heard, scarcely a yard away, the noise of the rhinoceros, hwich had gone round in a circle and was coming back to the track again.

Devoid of Fear

"I went behind a bush, but the animal also had the same idea, and it crashed right past me and caught me with its side, and I and two natives who were with me were knocked over into a thorn bush. Except for some cuts about the face I was otherwise unhurt. Most probably the rhinoceros did not see me."

Here Sir Charles Ross broke in, saying:

"There is only one thing that Mrs. Dalziel has been entirely deprived of in her composition. That is—fear, When a lion suddenly appears a few feet away from you and Mrs. Dalziel says, 'What a beautiful lion!'—well, there you are."

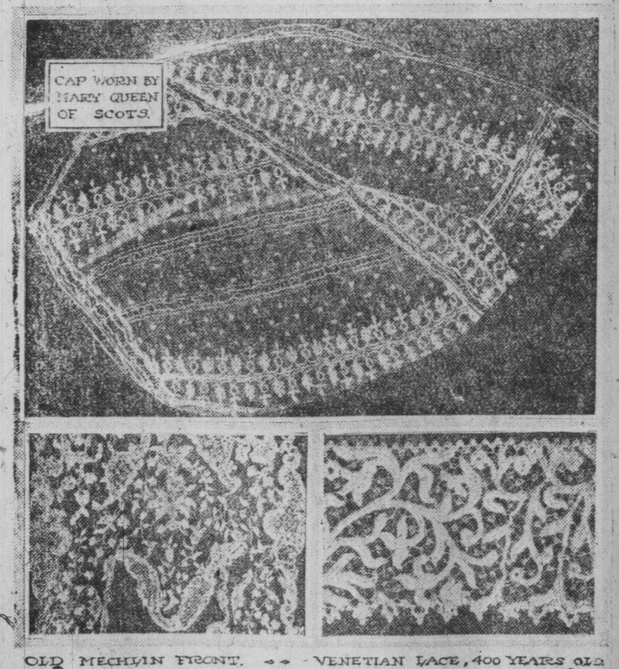
Lacc Cap Worn by Mary, Queen of Scots Is In Old Collection of La Jolla Woman



(By International News Service)

LA JOLLA, Cal., Sept. 7.—After being treasured by one family for more than five centuries, a collection of old Flemish and Venetian lace, consisting of pieces worn by royalty and nobility, is to be sold by Mrs. Cameron Shute, a daughter-in-law of the late Lady Shute, who was well known at the Court of Queen Victoria.

Mrs. Shute says the lace represents $150,000 value and is the finest collection in America. It was brought to America, she says, as a family heirloom some years ago.

The lace cap shown in the picture was worn by the ill-fated Mary Queen of Scots, when she was a girl in Paris. The pattern on the right is from a piece of Venetian lace 400 years old and worn at many courts. The other pattern is an old Mechelin front, 300 years old.

Time for Discretion.

I find the great thing in this world is not so much where we stand, as in what direction we are moving, writes O. W. Holmes. To reach the port of heaven, we must sail sometimes with the wind and sometimes against it—but we must sail, and not drift, nor lie at anchor.

GREAT VEIN OF GOLD IS FOUND IN CANADA

(By International News Service)

THE PAS, Man., Sept. 7.—Sensational reports reaching here of the gold discovery at Elbow Lake have caused a rush of prospectors to the region.

From surface showings, many believe the largest body of gold ore on the continent has been tapped. The containing dyke has been stripped of overburden for a length of 350 feet and a width of fifty feet without encountering the walls of the vein. The outcropping near the edge of the lake has developed, it is said, into a rich pocket of gold.

The vein is in a greenstone formation, and the mineralization is in perphyry, with quartz stringers. An attractive feature is the evident continuity of free gold the length and width of the dyke, starting from the gold pocket, from which specimens of 50 per cent were taken.

Dan Austin, a prospector, said he stood on the shore of the lake and could see the ore body dipping into the water, showing free gold standing out everwhere. Going over the exposed section of the vein, he claims to have seen free gold in fairly regular quantities from beginning to end.

Reached for Hip Pockets.

Making of moving pictures is rather a novelty in Arizona, and Bisbee residents have difficulty in getting used to seeing gaudily dressed western "bad men" rushing around with artillery strapped on their belts.

Some of the real old-time westerners are apt to jump to the wrong conclusion when a "movie westerner" goes on the warpath. For this reason a moving picture company, planning to stage a holdup scene at the depot at Osborn, eight miles south of here, had the train crew warn passengers no less than ten times before reaching the station that a "movie train robbery" would be staged. In spite of this several old-timers on the train reached for their hips when the "bandits" appeared and had to be convinced by fellow passengers that the holdup was not the real thing.—Los Angeles Times.

REVEAL THEIR ARMY TRAINING

Ex-Service Men Instinctively Line Up When a Crowd Is Waiting to Be Served.

Army training still manifests itself in civilian life, and former soldiers automatically fall into line when they must wait to be served. In the army the men spent a great deal of their time waiting in line for mess, drawing stuff from the supply sergeant and a dozen other purposes.

The old army training revealed itself strongly during the recent hot spell at the Brooklyn Central Y. M. C. A., when apparently most of the 10,000 members sought to take advantage of the swimming pool. Crowds of young men stormed the locker rooms each evening. The ex-service men set the example by lining up and taking their turns to reach the gate. As each elevator disembarked its load the former soldiers automatically went to the rear. Younger men who had not had this training and sought to edge in far up the line were promptly pulled out and sent to their station. No ex-service man who has stood in line to draw a pair of socks or get a mess kit full of "slum" will permit anyone to get ahead of him.

Varying Strength of Sunlight.

There is practically no such thing as overlighting, writes J. H. Kurlander, in describing for the General Science Quarterly a series of tests made by the lighting service department of the Edison lamp works. He adds: "Investigation of places which are said to be overlighted will usually show that, if anything, they are glaringly underlighted."

These tests showed that sunlight in an open field measures 8,000-foot candle power (which means that it gives the illumination that would be given by 8,000 candles a foot distant). Sunlight in a street between buildings measures 3,000-foot candles. Shadow in a street between buildings measures 300; under a tree in the open, 500. The light on an office desk next to a south window has an intensity of 110-foot candles; one ten feet in, 70, and one 18 feet in, 50. At inside benches between two exposures only 20.

No Divorce in Great Russia.

To the peasants of Great Russia marriage is a tie that death alone can sever, and divorce by the help of law courts is practically unknown to them. If the husband and wife cannot get along together they simply agree between themselves to live apart, the husband taking the boys and the wife the girls, in cases where there are any children. In spite of the fact that there is no recourse to the courts, however, husband and wife in Great Russia do not know each other before marriages except in rare instances. The selection is made by the parents or guardians, and it is unseemingly for the bridegroom to see the bride more than once before the nuptials.

Survey Shows How Tax Money Is Spent

By H. K. REYNOLDS,
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Grumbling as he pays his income tax and irritated by the extra cent or two which he pushes across the bar at the soda fountain, Mr. Average Citizen occasionally feels the pinch of Federal taxation, talks it over with his neighbor, and decides that an awful lot of money is needed to keep the Government running, but seldom realizes where all the dollars that Uncle Sam gathers into his Treasury go.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, in his first estimate of the cost of operating the Government, figures that about four and a half billion dollars would be required to keep the official wheels of the nation revolving during the present fiscal year. The Secretary told Congress how much the Government needed, showed neat rows of figures to prove his deductions, and then the House proceeded to slice there and trim here in accordance with their own ideas of how much money Uncle Sam could get along with—or without.

Departmental estimates of expenses are being given the careful "once over" nowadays under the suspicious eye of Charlie Dawes, official watchdog of the public Treasury, but bureau chiefs—those who decide how much they need to keep things going—are set in their ways and hard to budge. The effects of the war, when the personnel of many departments increased enormously, are still felt; and, although efforts have been made to return to normal working conditions, it is improbable that the comparatively cheaply operated government of prewar days will ever be restored.

The biggest single item in Secretary Mellon's list of estimated expenditures for this fiscal year is the interest on the public debt, which is placed at almost a billion dollars, or nearly one-fourth of the total requirements of the Government.

There is to be, it is estimated, an expenditure of $545,206,204 to the railroads, under the Transportation act of 1920, and $551,354,865 for the retirement of the public debt, as required by law. The debt payments include: Sinking fund, $265,754,865; War Savings Securities, $100,000,000; miscellaneous debt redemptions, $100,000; Purchase of Liberty Bonds from foreign repayments, $30,500,000; redemption of bonds and notes from estate taxes, $25,000,000; retirement of Pittman act certificates, $70,000,000; retirement from F. R. B. franchise tax receipts, $60,000,000.

The legislative branch of the Government estimates that it will need $17,213,813 during the present year, while the Executive Department will get less than two million, its expenses being estimated at $1,897,751.

The estimates list their requirements as follows:

State Department, $10,344,000; Department of Justice, $17,000,000; Post Office Department, $2,200,000; Interior Department, including pensions and Indian claims, $322,000,000; Department of Agriculture, $123,000,000; Department of Commerce, $19,023,000; Department of Labor, $5,252,887; independent offices, $13,484,516; District of Columbia, $22,187,663; miscellaneous, $62,500,000; postal deficiency, $60,000,000; Bureau of War Risk Insurance, $286,000,000; Public Health Service, $47,000,000; collecting revenue, $53,110,139; all other Treasury departments, $99,457,795; Federal Board for Vocational Education, $162,655,184; Panama Canal, $10,000,000.

NOT MUCH OUT OF ORDINARY

Intrusion of Leopard of Course Added Excitement to Tennis Game, but Otherwise——

A leopard—but let us begin at the beginning. Last year an Englishman, Dr. Chalmers Mitchell, flew from Cairo to Capetown by plane. Among other places he landed at a little settlement in a British protectorate in Central Africa and spent a day and a night there. The jungle was right at the doors of the white men's houses. So numerous were the wild beasts that the village seemed to be in the midst of a vast menagerie, and so bold and dangerous that men and women went armed even by day. At night they kept indoors.

While Doctor Mitchell and his hostess, a young English matron, were having a game of tennis two frightened bucks plunged into the court and a leopard followed them. "My hostess dropped her racket, caught her skirts in both hands and bolted for the house," says Doctor Mitchell. "I followed without a second look." The next-door neighbor, however, caught up his gun and got a shot at the leopard before it could spring on either of the bucks. The wounded cat turned tail and leaped back into the jungle behind the tennis court. The bucks, however, could not stop but went careering across the street, crashed through a garden and a pergola and disappeared into the bush beyond.

"I've had lots worse things happen to me here," his hostess told Doctor Mitchel nonchalantly. Then she picked up her tennis racket and prepared to go on with the game.—Youth's Companion.

Let Fortune Get Away.

All that glitters is not gold, but lack of glitter is not a certain test for worthlessness, it was found by gold diggers along a river in Papua, British New Guinea, recently. While searching for gold the men encountered a bluish-gray, flakish substance which they cast aside as worthless. Two months ago two pounds of this substance was bought in London by an American firm for approximately $6,000, or eight times the value of the same amount of gold. It was osmiridium, a member of one of the hardest metals known and used for the tipping of fountain pens and for delicate bearings of fine machinery. It is worth $200 an ounce. When the prospectors learned the value of the substance they hurried back to the river and learned that tropical rains had washed away most of the precious stuff. By careful work they raked together what was left, had it refined and sent to London.

Intentions Good, Methods Poor.

The Pullman porter's intentions were good, but his methods poor. Two sisters, near the sixty mark, were en route from Kansas to Indiana. The younger, weighing about 80 pounds, was convalescing from a long illness and needed assistance in moving about. The porter frequently was called for help.

One morning he met the older sister, who weighed near the 180 mark, and remarked:

"Why, your mother just walked down the aisle. She must be much better."

And when the porter was told of the "social error" he had made, he spent the greater part of the remainder of the journey pleading with the older sister not to tell of his mistake.

The Explanation.

Returning home from the park a man was jubilant because he had won prizes at several of the stands.

"I got four boxes of candy, two kewpie dolls, seven stickpins and a chicken," he told his wife.

"Did you wear your sporty hat?"

"Yes."

"And that suit with the big checks?"

"Why, certainly."

"And that loud tie?"

"Yes, but what's the difference?"

"That accounts for the winning of all those prizes. I'll bet a cookie the stand keepers thought you were a capper connected with the outfit."

Salt Rising Bread.

A cooking class is being organized in Houston to revive the lost art of making "salt rising" light bread. If the good old bread of the daddies and mammies is to come back all such latter-day contrivances as gas ranges and oil stoves will have to be set aside. The Signal serves notice on the Houstonians that salt-raising bread can only be cooked in fireplace ovens, and loaves that are not as big as a half-bushel measure or a full size cheese do not count.—Honey Grove Signal.

Suez Canal to Be Tunneled.

The great military base at Kantara, from which the British built a military railway through the desert to Palestine, is being dismantled. The line, of course, is permanent. During the war the Suez canal was crossed by a large swing bridge, which is now to be dismantled. Connection between the Egyptian railways and the new line to Palestine will be maintained by means of a tunnel which will be built below the Suez canal.

Japan to Honor First Emperor.

Japan is preparing to build a pyramid for the first emperor, Jimmu Tenno, somewhere in the suburbs of Tokio, and for this purpose a committee of prominent men will collect a stone from every subject of the empire says the Argonaut. It is the intention to make this the highest structure in the Far East.

Taffeta, plain and changeable, black cire and narrow imported braids with contrasting edges are the materials most used for trimmings.

A SILVER THIEF

By DOROTHY KNIGHT.

© 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

John Stanley was in love! The realization swept over him like the rush of a mighty wave. But no, it was not possible. It could not be. How could a practical man, nay, a hardened cynic, as he was, in affairs of the heart, be in love with a girl he had never seen?

And yet, the allure of that picture—the calm, sweet expression of the wide-set eyes, with just a vague suggestion of rougishness, the smiling mouth, the—But what was the use? He did not even know who or what she was, and how could he find out? A stray picture torn from an old newspaper! What was her plea to fame—the season's most popular debutante, a footlight favorite, perchance, a bride? But no, not that. Her brown eyes (surely they must be brown; they were very dark, anyway) haunted him. He could not sleep.

He lay awake and reviewed the events of the day. That morning on arriving in Boston he had met his old friend, Norton, who, with his wife was going away on a trip. Norton had given him the keys and offered him the use of the Norton apartment for the week he was to be in town. So, instead of being in a dreary hotel, he was sleeping—or trying to sleep—in a luxurious bed in a daintily furnished apartment.

He dozed off, still with the fair face before his eyes.

A faint sound reached his ears as if someone were moving around the apartment.

A girl was moving quietly across the room in her stockinged feet. Her back was toward the door. She went directly to the sideboard and opened the top drawer. An almost imperceptible exclamation came from her as she took out piece after piece of silver, examining it carefully. She seemed entirely engrossed by it—fascinated.

"What are you doing here?" John demanded in a stern tone.

She turned like a startled doe, at the same time grasping the silver more firmly. The color fled from her face. But almost immediately she gained at least a semblance of self-control as she said, in a voice that only trembled slightly: "What are you doing here?"

But alas for John! In proportion as the girl had gained her equanimity he had lost his. It was the girl of his dreams, walking and, alas, sleeping, too, he feared. He knew her the moment she turned around.

"What are you doing here?" she repeated. She seemed entirely master of the situation, while poor John writhed in the knowledge that the girl he loved was a thief.

"I live here, of course, and you?" with a rising inflection.

For the fraction of a second she looked around helplessly, as if seeking a way out of her difficulty, and then, as if accepting the inevitable, she said, banteringly, as if trying to gain time: "These do not look like bachelor apartments."

"How do you know I am a bachelor?"

"Oh," sweetly, "a girl can generally tell." As she spoke she edged toward the door.

Anticipating her, John placed himself in the doorway.

"Do you know, if that were my silver, I should be almost tempted to give it to you? But since it belongs to my friends, Mr. and Mrs. Norton, whose apartment I am occupying for a few days, I will have to ask you to return it."

"Oh," she gasped, and the swift color dyed her face. "Then you are not—a—a—" Embarrassed she paused.

"Another thief," finished John. "No, I'm not, but perhaps if I loved antique silver as passionately as you seem to, and if it were my sole desire to possess it—"

"How do you spell that 'soul?'" she interrupted.

Before he could frame a reply her expression changed from flippancy to seriousness, as she begged: "But you will not have me arrested, will you? You will let me go? I will, never, never do such a thing again."

Quickly she replaced the silver, stepped deftly into her tiny pumps, and before the astonished John knew what was happening she was gone.

Gone, too, was his peace of mind. Gone was his heart. His thoughts were in a riot.

He picked up a book carelessly, but what he saw made him gasp and rub his eyes to see if he were really awake. It was the girl, and her name was signed. Of all the unexpected things! It was Norton's sister. What must she think of him, taking her for a thief?

* * * * * * *

Two days later an animated couple were enjoying tea, and, incidentally, each other, in a deserted corner of an out-of-the-way tea room.

"I think I understand everything now, except what you were doing with the silver."

"Why, that's perfectly simple. You see, Mary's grand-aunt had just given them some antique silver, which I had never seen, and, as I love antique silver, even though it is not my sole desire—" Swiftly he interrupted: "Speaking of 'soul desires,' and you spell it any way you please, I know what mine is, now, and I am going to get it, too. If I have to overturn heaven and earth to do it."

Did he? Well, her name is now Mrs. John.

WORLD HAS CHANGED LITTLE

Marked Similarity in Certain Newspaper Advertising Today and That of Many Years Ago.

Newspaper advertising of 160 years ago differed greatly in form from that of today, but the difference in substance and intent was rather small. In the columns of the New York Mercury of that period one finds the following articles offered for sale and extolled for their particular qualities:

"Godfrey's General Cordial," which was the opiated soothing syrup used in that day for peevish, teething babies; the "Princely Beautifying Lotion," by use of which the ladies "made up" for the street; "Turlington's Original Balsam of Life," which must have been disappointing since all the users are now dead; "Dr. Ryan's Incomparable Worm Destroying Sugar Plumbs," "White Drops for the Scurvy," "Red Pills," "Sweating Powder," "Dr. Radcliffe's Only True Specific Tincture for the Toothache," "Essence of Balm of Gilead," "Potter's Water, for the Safe, Easy and Specific Cure for the Stone and Gravel," "Keyser's Pills," "Golden Tincture for Hysterical Diseases," "Genuine Harlaem Oyl" by the bottle, "Levine's Well Known Eyewater," "Bloom of Circassia" for off-color complexions, "Lady Molyneux's Italian Paste," "Best Corn Plasters and Lip Salve," "Venetian Paste for Enameling the Hands, Neck and Face."

The bottle of Stoughton Bitters by which old topers used to give an additional tang to their nips of whisky stood behind every public bar up to about 50 years ago. Long after its use had been abandoned it persisted until "standing like a Stoughton bottle" became the common expression for immobility.

GREAT POWER OF PRESIDENT

United States Chief Executive "Most Potent Constitutional Functionary in the World."

The legal functions of the President's office are so eminent that he cannot escape the responsibilities of executive action, however much he may be inclined to avoid them. His constitutional powers alone make him the pivot upon which all the administrative machinery operates.

He appoints the heads of departments and may direct their major policies. His power of appointment to all the greater offices is far reaching. He can recommend, shape and veto legislation. His control over foreign affairs is virtually complete. He is commander in chief of the army and the navy. In short, he is the most potent constitutional functionary in the world.

All these constitutional powers have been vastly augmented by practice and custom. The President today can do innumerable things that George Washington or Thomas Jefferson would never have dared do even if they had thought of them.

The constitutional conception of the President is that of a chief executive, an administrator; custom has added to this conception that of leadership, of initiation.—Samuel P. Orth in the Yale Review.

Clung to the Foot-Hills.

Humanity in its settlements has never cared for the high mountains or their valleys....But the races of men have ever been well disposed to snuggle up close to the foot-hills. The modern cities have been built beside great rivers on the flat lands, but in Biblical times cities were founded upon rocks in the lower hills; and where no hills existed, as in the Mesopotamia valley, the Assyrians built a huge brick platform in imitation of a flat hill, and reared their city upon that. Athens was built upon and about the Acropolis, the Areopagus, and the limestone heights between Cephissus and Ilissus. Rome and Constantinople are both builded on their seven hills, and the hills around about Jerusalem are famous.—John C. Van Dyke.

One of Ocean's Biggest Fishes.

The turbot is one of the largest of the flat fishes, and one of the species that is of most value commercially. It is seldom over two feet long, and weighs about 18 pounds, although 90-pound turbot have been caught. Its body is very flat and wide, with a long fin on the top and bottom ridges. Its upper surface is brown, and covered with hard, round knobs.

The turbot is a sea fish, and its eggs—five or 10,000,000 to a fish—float on the ocean surface, but the full-grown turbot prefers a sea bank, where it lies on its lighter side. Both the eyes are on the upper side of the body. The turbot abounds off the western coast of Europe, where it is caught for export.

Mazarin's Great Library.

At the beginning of the Fronde intrigues in Paris in 1648, when Anne of Austria, mother of Louis XIV, was queen regent of France, Cardinal Mazarin's library held 40,000 books, and was the most important collection of books then existing. Mazarin was compelled to retire from court, and the French parliament voted the confiscation and sale of his library. Louis sent Fouquet with unlimited power to bid it in, but the parliament, comprehending that it would in this way be returned to Mazarin, ordered its complete dispersion, by selling it in small lots. The librarian was so affected that he died of a broken heart. The sale of Mazarin's paintings was to have followed, but they were saved.

While tight sleeves may be said to be in the majority, a number of the wide sleeve treatments are also seen.

MINTON'S GIRL

By HELEN M'DONOUGH

© 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

J. Van Arden Perkins (the "J. Van Arden" lately substituted for plain John) laughed heartily from the depths of the fraternity sofa.

"Don't miss this, fellows," he cried. "Use your imagination and dramatic instinct to picture a country lass in a calico dress sitting in a hair-cloth, family-portraited old parlor—a mouse-colored creature—and then listen to her metropolitan nerve:

"'Sunshine wouldn't be sunshine
Skies wouldn't look so blue,
Life would be so drear, dear,
Without a thought of you.'

"And here's a snapshot. How do you like the inscription? 'Taken the day we parted, when you asked me to wait for you. Waiting, as ever, Nell.'"

"Look out," warned a gay, cynical voice, "there'll be a breach of promise, old man!"

Arthur Minton, a serious-faced chap, took the picture, first respectfully—then reverently. "If a girl like that—a girl who can look at the world with so level and innocent a gaze—with lips from which only sweetness and charity fall—with hands worn with service—if such a girl loved me I'd go to the ends of the earth to win her—and I wouldn't make her loyalty a jest of my fraternity."

With that he flung himself out of the smoking room and locked himself in his own. So, he reflected. Perkins was the man Nell loved so devotedly—the man for whom she refused him.

He went back over the golden summer days two years ago when he first met her. He had been touring through the wonderful northern Vermont country—when there had been an accident to his machine and he was hurled over the embankment. Nell, off on a solitary stroll, found him lying senseless, a mass of lacerations.

Rich in the lore of simple, medical help, she did what she could, then rode miles for a doctor.

All summer he was at their farmhouse, and Nell, despite her many household duties, delegated herself as his special attendant.

Confident that there was no one else, he asked her at last to marry him, telling her that she was the most adorable girl he had ever met. It was only then she told him she was promised to another, whose family, suddenly becoming heir to an unexpected fortune, had moved away.

Minton pressed his case and came back to see her more than once, but though there was an exquisite camaraderie between them, she still kept her faith in her first love.

Minton winced when he thought that Perkins—weak-willed, silly, impressionable—was the unappreciative recipient of her constancy.

He immediately made up his mind to go to her.

He went into the hall to find a room-mate. Poised as if for flight—a look of fear and indecision on her lovely face, stood Nell. She was not the unfashionable country girl whom he knew and loved, but an exquisitely gowned creature, still simple, but distinctively so.

He wondered afterwards why he was not surprised to find her in his fraternity rooms. All he knew was that he was inexpressibly happy. He took her, unresisting, in his arms.

"I still love you," he said breathlessly, "and I'm not going to let that Perkins interfere any more, either!"

"I heard everything!" she said, "and your aunt, whose real identity I did not know until a few moments ago, told me a great deal more. After you had told her about me last year, she came to us, asking to stay with us so that she might paint the river and the mountains. She was very good to me, and taught me so many wonderful things—to modulate my voice—to walk gracefully—to play, sing and to paint.

"Then one day she received a letter from your sister, regretting that she could not attend your fraternity dance. Unknown to both you and me, your aunt planned that I should go instead, and she would chaperone me. The rest-rooms which the hostess provided for the women-guests happened to adjoin the room you and John were in. I didn't know either of you were here until I heard your voices.

"At first I thought—well, I can't tell you what I thought. But now I know that I can really honorably love you. You don't know how hard I had to try to be loyal, and not to think of you too much—not to care for you!"

That night, during an intermission in the fraternity dance downstairs, "J. Van Arden" Perkins remarked to one of the boys:

"Where's Minton tonight? Guess he got over his peeve all right. Saw him taking a deuced pretty girl and her chaperone over to the hotel for dinner, and he was pretty hilarious. I'm trying to think where I met his girl before. She's a 'peach' and too good-looking to waste her fine looks on an old fogy like Minton. Must meet her!"

But at that precise moment the "deuced pretty girl" found great happiness in promising to be with the "old fogy" for life.

A Natural Cave Man.

"Why don't you be a cave man?"

"I wish I could," replied Mr. Meekton. "If I had a cool cave somewhere I'd hide in it."

Even If You Could "Coast" In the Old "Bus" EVERYWHERE
IT WOULD COST YOU MORE THAN PACIFIC ELECTRIC FARES

THE GAS you burn is only a small item in your total cost of operation. Add to that the cost of oil, rubber, repairs and depreciation in the value of the machine, and see "where you are getting off."

The Government says it is costing you from 9c to 14c per mile.

You can ride the Pacific Electric way for 3c per mile for the occasional journey and for about 1½c per mile for the frequent (commutation) trips.

"CAN YOU BEAT IT?" YOU CAN NOT!

Memorial for Baxter Dogs.

At the summer home of Governor Baxter of Maine on Mackworth island, Casco bay, are buried all the dogs owned by him which have died since 1887, says a Boston dispatch to the New York Times. The governor is now having made a bronze tablet, giving the names and record of these animals. This will rest on the face of a big granite bowlder, around which the dogs have been buried.

The dogs were all of the same family and strain of Irish setters. The first and great grandmother was Glencora, given to the governor in 1887 by his father, the late James P. Baxter of Portland, Me.

The governor has raised about seventy-five of these dogs, and while he has sold a few, most of those he has not kept have been given to friends.

John Alvin, the Ex-Convict

By WILLIAM FALL

(©, 1921, Western Newspaper Union.)

Ten years in prison take a good deal out of a man's life that can never be replaced or made up again, and when John Alvin found the gates of the state penitentiary barred behind him instead of in front of him, he felt acutely the gap that had to be bridged between the Alvin of 1911, the young bank cashier who had flung his firm's money into the bottomless pit of speculation, and the Alvin of 1921, prematurely bowed, embittered by brooding over his planned revenge, and walking with the peculiar gait which made him the object of suspicion to every passing policeman.

He had a new suit of fairly good blue serge, a new hat, a new pair of shoes, and fifty-one dollars in his pocket, besides a ticket for Cranston.

But Alvin was not going to Cranston. He was going to Myrtle, 200 miles in the opposite direction, and he had asked for a free ticket to Cranston to blind the spies of Howell, his enemy. He meant to kill Howell, and thus to wipe out the disgrace which he had brought upon him. What happened after that he did not care. There was no one to whom he mattered. His mother might have cared, but Alvin was confident that she was dead. It was ten years since she had seen or written to him—in brief, since he entered the penitentiary. And a mother's anger seldom lasts ten years.

All the way in the train to Myrtle, Alvin was busy bridging over the hiatus in his life. He had been just an ordinary clerk in the bank in his home town, engaged to an ordinary girl who, nevertheless, seemed very extraordinary in his eyes. He was just a weak, foolish boy who, believing that he saw a short cut to wealth, had played with the bank's money and lost. Howell, the director, had prosecuted, and, having considerable influence, had obtained for Alvin the sentence which he had heard with dismay and terror. Ten years to expiate for the theft of ten thousand dollars! Why, he was not getting a thousand a year in those far-off days when he was engaged to Isabel!

But Alvin was not going to kill Howell for that. He was going to kill him because he had afterward married Isabel. That was the barb, that the secret of his incredible vindictiveness! He had never suspected a rival in the smooth, plausible bank director.

It was strange how little Myrtle had altered. When Alvin descended at the station he noticed two or three new blocks of buildings that had not been erected before; otherwise the streets were much the same. Nobody recognized the dapper young bank clerk in the gray-haired man who strolled up the high street, though Alvin knew several of them. He guessed that Howell occupied one of those new white frame structures that he could see in the distance, very pretty in their groves of shade trees.

And Isabel was seated on the lawn, right at the edge of the lawn, under a tree, watching the passersby in her foolish, empty-headed way, and rocking. As he approached, he saw that a boy some seven years old was standing by her side and that another sprawled at her feet. Her children, evidently! He stopped; and suddenly the veil that obscured his mind was lifted, and with a sob he turned away. She had not recognized him.

It had grown dark when Alvin finally turned toward his enemy's house. He passed the little place of his birth. A light was burning in the parlor. When at last he crouched outside the room and saw Howell, his feet in slippers, stretched out in a chair, reading, he forbore to fire. His hatred needed the sight of the man to enkindle it. At last, almost reluctantly, he raised the revolver.

Just then his arm was caught from behind—not that which held the revolver, invisible in the darkness; nevertheless he lowered it and swung round to look into the face of a little elderly lady. His mother stood there at his side.

"John!" she whispered, clinging to him. "You've come home, John! I knew you would. Father is waiting for you. He is bedridden now, but he has forgiven you.

"He wouldn't let me write or see you for years, John, but his illness has softened him. He said you would come home. He made me promise to wait for you. We have a light in your room every night, John."

Then the mists lifted entirely, and suddenly he understood that the most precious love in all the world was his; and, having that, what did he care for others?

He felt his eyes blinded with tears as he slipped the pistol into his pocket and clasped his mother in his arms.

Good Photo of Wild Geese.

A flock of migrating wild geese was included in a novel picture lately obtained by the Great Trigonometrical Survey of India. It is the custom to photograph the sun at noon of every clear day, and the geese happened to be flying over at the instant of exposure. Calculation showed that the flock, which was very clearly shown, was at a hight of about 5 1-2 miles. The geese in flight are sometimes seen and heard, but they doubtless much more frequently pass unnoticed.

HERB FARMS TO BE COMMON

Comparatively New Branch of Horticulture Is Becoming Popular in England.

Without doubt herb culture is the coming science. One of the most arresting facts in the domain of medicines today is the progress made in pharmacy, London Tit-Bits states.

Herbs, from having been used ad lib. in medieval times, fell into disrepute, and in modern times herbal remedies, apart from drugs which could be numbered on the fingers of one hand, were tabooed, save by the enlightened few.

Herb farming is a new branch of horticulture, writes A. R. Horwood, F. L. S., in the Homeopathic World. It is an interesting and intellectual pursuit specially suited for women.

Before the war there were numerous herb farms run on commercial lines by firms of manufacturing chemists. But there were no schools for the training of amateurs. Since the war, however, a school and herb farm has been started at Chalfont St. Peter, Buckinghamshire, by Mrs. M. Grieve, F. R. H. S.

One of the main objects of herb farming is to cultivate plants of medicinal value. Besides the drug plants in general use, such as belladonna, henbane, fox-glove, aconite, datura and so on, a vast number of herbs whose real value is known are used in medicine, including such common plants as dandelion, couch grass, red poppy, colchicum, barberry, chamomile, dill, fennel, blessed thistle, valerian and male fern.

TO PROTECT SACRED SNUFF

Reason Given for the High Bench Behind Which Supreme Court Judges Have Their Seats.

The Federal Supreme court is celebrating its centenary of "the high bench." Originally the justices sat behind a long bench on the floor of the court—on a level with the lawyers who tried their cases before them. This straight desk had set into it a snuff box opposite each justice's seat. Henry Clay was arguing a case before the court. During a pause in his argument one of the justices reached forward, took a pinch of snuff and settled back to weigh the more carefully the reasoning presented. In his next pause Mr. Clay reached over and with a "Thank you" took a pinch himself. The court was indignant. That afternoon they met to decide what could be done to preclude the possibility of a second breach of the "etiquette of the court", and decided to have a bench made of such height that no mere practitioner could reach their pet snuff. Since then they have sat behind the high bench that is in use today.—New York Tribune.

Power From Glacier.

On account of the scarcity of water power in the Bern district of Switzerland, it is proposed to utilize the water from the glaciers in a systematic manner. The Bachilis glacier is the first one selected; and by closing the natural drainage and constructing a masonry dam, the engineers are to form a storage reservoir of 113,000,000 cubic feet capacity. Grimel, which upon the completion of the new dam 492 feet long, 325 feet high by 262 feet wide at the base and 12 feet 6 inches wide at the top, becomes the main storage basin for the entire installation. Two new power stations are to be constructed, developing 120,000 horsepower in one and 90,000 horsepower in the other.

Vivid Obituary.

Died—Aged fifty-six years, six months and thirteen days. He was a mild-mannered pirate, with a mouth for whisky. He came here in the night with another man's wife and joined the church at the first seance. He owed us several dollars for the paper, a large meat bill and you could hear him pray six blocks. He died singing, "Jesus paid it all," and we think he is right—he never paid anything himself. He was buried in an asbestos casket, and his friends threw palm leaf fans in his grave, as he may need them.—Montpelier (N. D.) Magnet.

Stopping a Hemorrhage.

Dr. F. C. Hilgenberg has a novel method of stopping hemorrhage. Writing in the Beitrnege Zur Klinischen Chirurgie (Teubingen) he describes cases in which he cut a piece of muscle from near the site of the hemorrhage, used it as a plug or patch and sewed it into place, always stopping the flow of blood. He thinks there is some chemical action in addition to the mechanical effect.

Right Payment.

Nine-year-old Charles carried letters from the lawyer next door to his best girl. Every time he took one the lawyer gave him a dime. But one day he decided to reward him a little better. He started to fish two dimes out of his pocket. "I guess these letters are about worth 20 cents," he remarked facetiously.

"Yes, sir," Charles agreed, soberly, "that's what I get—a dime from you and one from her."

But he didn't know what there was about his speech to make the fellow grin so happily.

SEE EXHAUSTION OF RADIUM

Many Authorities Believe There Will Be None Remaining in About Twenty-Five Years.

Some authorities predict that, 25 years from now, there will be no radium left in the world. By that time, it is claimed, all available ores of this wonderful mineral will have been used up.

The so-called radium emanations are supposed to be electrified particles—though just what these particles are nobody knows. They do not seem to be identifiable as any kind of matter. But after being given off, they cease to be electrically charged and assume the form of helium.

Here is a case altogether extraordinary, in which one element is actually transmuted into another element—a phenomenon which has hitherto been thought impossible.

Helium was first discovered in the sun. It was later found in our own atmosphere, which contains a minute percentage of it. Natural gas from some wells in Texas and elsewhere yields considerable quantities of it—so much in certain instances that, being noninflammable, it renders the gas less useful as fuel.

Is it to be imagined that all of the existing helium was originally derived from radium? Nobody can answer that question.

GOSSIP FORM OF INSANITY?

City Authorities Who Have Dealt With the Problem Are Strongly of That Opinion.

Men and women who gossip, said Dr. E. H. Bullock of Chicago, city health director, cannot be in their right mind, and should be given the closest attention to get them back to normal. They have been called "assassins of character," and E. C. B. Jenkins, a psychologist and secretary to the board of police commissioners, Chicago, says, in the Detective, February, 1921, that the neighborhood gossip and the anonymous letter writer have one of the nastiest, lowest and most vicious forms of insanity known to medical circles. Their distorted imagination visualizes scenes which they would have come true, and their insane mind immediately grasps the story and they repeat it as if it were true.

Gossip and anonymous letters, says the New York Medical Journal, are a constant pest at police headquarters, but reports registered with police officers in an attempt to injure character by these means or false telephonic reports are a failure; in fact, the police take more pleasure in tracking the informer than the one informed about.

What He Wanted.

A little Washington boy was dining at a friend's house with his mother not so very long ago when charlotte russes in paper collars were one of the features of the dessert. The fluffy delicacies tasted very much like "more" to the hungry little chap.

Is there anything else you'll have, dear?" asked the hostess, solicitously.

"Yes, ma'am," eagerly assented the child. "I want another of them pretty little Charlie Rosses."

One of the noveau riche women with which Washington abounds said at a tea the other afternoon, with a consequential air, that really her neuritis was getting so bad she was at her wits' end; she'd tried everything except a chiropatrick! Did any of us have any faith in the ministrations of chiropatricks?

It is not at all infrequent to hear the Hotel Raleigh in Washington spoken of seriously as the "Hotel Ralledge," or Huyler's candy place as "Hulyer's."

An innocent local dame boasts of the bed of scarlet "saliva" that bloomed in her garden all through the autumn.—Washington Star.

QUIT MEAT WHEN KIDNEYS BOTHER

Take a Glass of Salts if Your Back Hurts or Bladder Troubles You

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which excites the kidneys, they become overworked from the strain, get slugish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood, then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acids of grapes and lemon joice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acid in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

Southern California Fair Gathers Headway

Special Entertainments

The Southern California Fair this year has been fortunate in contracting with the largest and best show and carnival that will be on the Pacific coast during the season. This will be the largest show the fair has ever yet been able to secure. There will be six rides of various designs, including of course, the very necessary merry-go-round, the Ferris wheel, the whip, the captive airplanes, and a brand new ride, just put into service. There will be twelve shows on the special midway, including a large wildwest, a dog and pony show, a five-in-one animal show, a wonderful mystic mirror maze, and a number of others which will cheer the hearts of young and old. These are all clean, attractive concessions, and bands and music will make the Midway a continuous scene of pleasure and gaiety.

The fair management has also secured a number of bands and musical organizations that will be playing in different sections of the grounds, at all times, day and evening. Numerous free acts will keep the scene continually enlivened. There will be something doing every minute in by far the biggest fair that has ever been staged in Southern California.

Industrial Products

Great interest is being shown in the industrial exhibition at the Southern California Fair at Riverside, October 11 to 16. The largest tent available has been secured, for housing this general exhibition of manufactured products of every conceivable kind, for attractive display.

Already some of the largest concerns in the south have reserved space, and are building their exhibits. This exhibition will be educational and extremely profitable, as well as wonderfully attractive. The people of Southern California will, many of them, be greatly surprised to learn of the vast growth of the manufacuring industry in this section of the state. An expression that will be heard at all times and in all parts of the tent is, "My, I never knew these things were manufactured in California." This wonderful exhibition promises to be the center of attraction at the fair.

Great Live Stock Show

The livestock show at Riverside this fall will, in several departments, be the largest held in the state this year. The experience of the exhibitors last year and the year before proved to them the value of showing their stock at Riverside. They met a greater number of farmers, ranchers, and stock men than at any other fair at which they exhibited. One of the largest exhibitors on the western coast last year said he found more real interest in livestock at Riverside than at any other place he visited with his herd. This is a real "farmers' fair," and the livestock department is a continuous center of interest.

From entries already received and assured, there will be a wonderful showing of the dairy breeds at Riverside, and it will be the largest show of these breeds in the state this fall. The various beef breeds will be well represented, and some splendid herds will be seen.

The leading breed of swine will be shown in the biggest swine show in California this year. The large breeders, who have fitted herds for the fairs, are planning to come to Riverside. Last year 420 head of swine were placed on exhibition at the Southern California Fair which included the very best specimens in the state, and some from other states. This number will be increased this fall, and those who have already entered, or have indicated their intention of entering, provide an assurance that the swine show at Riverside will be a notable event. The fair association very materially increased the premium money in all live stock departments, and the sums offered in the various classes make an exceedingly attractive inducement for breeders.

The Junior Club exhibition will be a riot of interest and attractiveness at the fair. Plans, including the housing of pigs for 50 clubs, a number of calf clubs, bee clubs, poultry clubs, and every other sort of club under the direction of the High School and Government Extension Service, are under consideration for erection.

The livestock judging contest, under the supervision of the state director of Junior Education and the State College of Agriculture, will hold its final session at the Southern California fair. It is planned that the winners in the state contest at Riverside will receive free trips to the National Livestock Exposition.

Exhibition of Products

On account of the wonderful variety of agricultural production in Southern California, it is a monumental task to present anything bordering on a complete showing of the products of field and farm in a centralized show, but the Southern California fair proposes to make such an exposition at Riverside, October 11 to 16. To house this monumental exposition, one of the largest tents available in the state has been secured, and practically every county in the southern part of California is gathering its very best products for exhibition. Attractive premiums are offered by the association, and a spirited contest is under way.

Riverside County is not permitted to enter this contest, but classes in community exhibits are so arranged and made so attractive that every community in the county has its committee busily engaged in assembling samples of the very best, to show in artistic exhibits.

The United States Department of Agriculture and the State Department of Agriculture are each making an attractive exhibit of the work of their various bureaus and divisions. The Mexican government also is planning a wonderful exhibit. There will be a very attractive date show, the largest that has ever been made at a fair or exposition, and in addition an extremely interesting exhibit of avacadoes.

Indian Arts

The exhibit of Indian arts and crafts at the Southern California fair this fall will be a most attractive showing of the work which the government has been able to accomplish in the education of the Indians. With considerable effort on the part of the representatives of the Indian service, there will be shown at the fair native basket weavers at work, native Navajo rug weavers, and lace weavers at work. On exhibit will be over four thousand dollars' worth of completed Navajo blankets, baskets, and silverware and silver ornaments made by native tribes. Every department of industrial work will show attractive samples of the various articles produced.

Race Meeting

The race meeting at the Southern California Fair this fall promises to exceed that of last year, which was reputed to be the greatest meet on the coast last season. The best horses in the various circuits throughout the entire coast are planning to come to Riverside. Large purses have been hung up in the various events, and five days of lively racing are promised.

Poultry Show

The poultry show at Riverside this fall will exceed in size and importance any feathered exhibit shown in the state this year. Besides having a complete show in all the prominent breeds of chickens, there will be the largest show of bantams that has been made this year, and in addition a wonderful show of pigeons. This is the tenth annual poultry show for Riverside, and in those ten years, the records show some wonderful exhibitions. But for numbers and quality, the show this fall will exceed any previous effort. A large number of new coops are being provided, and more space will be used than ever before.

Milk Goats

In the past two years the Southern California fair at Riverside has earned the reputation of presenting the largest show of milk goats ever made. Not only has this show been great in numbers, but some of the finest animals in the United States have been on exhibit here. The show this fall promises even to exceed that of last year and the year before. The same committee are at work and have received such encouragment from prominent breeders of milk goats of all varieties that they are able to assure a still better show than previously.

Rabbit Industry

The rabbit industry in Southern California is evidently receiving a renewal of interest and activity, as the management of the Southern California Fair has received information from committees at work that it will require, to house their exhibit this fall, more hutches than they have ever needed before. A special building is provided for this exhibit, and it will be one of the attractive features of the fair.

DEFINITION OF COAL

(By International News Service)

LONDON, Sept. 7.—Coal has been defined at last.

After considering the subject for eight years the Department Committee on the spontaneous combustion of coal in mines has issued its report. The report includes a definition of coal.

"Coal," the report states, "is a highly complex conglomerate of the degradation products of cellulose substance."

So now we shall know the next time when we prod a complex conglomerate of degraded cellulose with the poker.
